Mr. Ted Henry first learned of Sai Baba in 1968 while living and working for two years in Paraguay, South America in the U.S. Peace Corps. He spent 44 years as a television journalist, and in 1992 visited Calcutta for the first time to meet and interview Mother Teresa. While there, his hosts told him to return to India one day so that he might have a chance to visit their teacher, Sai Baba. Several years later, he met and married Jody Cleary, a strong Sai Baba follower, and after their wedding they made a total of 19 trips to visit Baba in Prashanti and Whitefield. About 21 years ago, he started to interview spiritually minded people for a YouTube program called Souljourns. Thus far, they have recorded more than 400 interviews, and more than 5 million people have visited their website to watch many of their video interviews. They also learned that those who continue to view Souljourns come from no fewer than 142 countries.
